Writing about Fiction

Libraries Unlimited
Many scientists and engineers consider themselves poor writers or find the writing process difficult. The good news is that you do not have to be a talented writer to produce a good scientific paper, but you do have to be a careful writer. In particular, writing for a peer-reviewed scientific or engineering journal requires learning and executing a specific formula for presenting scientific work. This book is all about teaching the style and conventions of writing for a peer-reviewed scientific journal. From structure to style, titles to tables, abstracts to author lists, this book gives practical advice about the process of writing a paper and getting it published.

Teaching and Learning in Physical Therapy: From Classroom to Clinic is a text seeking to guide the development of effective teaching strategies for use in both the classroom and the clinical setting. Margaret Plack and Maryanne Driscoll have developed this text with over 35 years of experience in teaching, research and clinical work. This experience has given them the opportunity to discover the best ways to students learn at different ages and stages of development. Teaching and Learning in Physical Therapy is grounded in current literature and has a theoretical basis in reflective practice, active learning strategies, and brain compatible instruction. Also included is practical information that allows students, educators, and clinicians, working with both students and patients, to develop instructional strategies that will work best in a variety of settings. Features included: • A user-friendly approach integrating theory and practical application throughout • References and suggested reading at the end of each chapter • Classroom and clinical vignettes to help reinforce concepts • Integrative problem solving activities and reflective questions Teaching and Learning in Physical Therapy: From Classroom to Clinic is applicable in both the classroom and clinical setting, making it ideal for physical therapy students, educators, and clinicians as well as other health care practitioners and educators.

Writing a Research Paper SLACK

Incorporated Racial intolerance, social change, and sweeping progress make 1908 Washington, D.C., a turbulent place to grow up in for 12-year-old Emily Soper. For Emily, life in Papa's carriage barn is magic, and she's more at home hearing the symphony of the blacksmith's hammer than trying to conform to the proper expectations of young ladies. When Papa's livelihood is threatened by racist neighbors and horsepower of a different sort, Emily faces changes she'd never imagined. Finding courage and resolve she didn't know she had, Emily strives to save Papa's business, even if it means going all the way to the White House.

The Elements of Style

Boynton/Cook

This study examined whether or not fourth-graders could fully demonstrate their writing skills on the computer and factors associated with their performance on the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) computer-based writing assessment. The results suggest that high-performing fourth-graders (those who scored in the upper 20 percent in the computer- and paper-based writing assessments on the NAEP) write better on the computer than on paper and can fully demonstrate their writing proficiency in a computer-based assessment. There are, however, indications that low-performing fourth-graders (i.e., those in the bottom 20 percent) and middle-performing fourth-graders (representing the middle 60 percent) may have performed less well on the computer than on paper. This suggests a potential differential effect of writing on the computer on writing performance that might have contributed to the widened achievement gap between high- and non-high-performing (i.e., low- and middle-performing) students in the 2012 computer-based pilot assessment, compared to the 2010 paper-based pilot assessment. Unequal prior exposure to writing on the computer and preference for mode of writing (paper vs. computer) appear to be associated with this widening of the achievement gap. For example, about 94 percent of high-performing students in 2012 reported having access to the Internet at home, compared to about half (52 percent) of low-performing students. The score difference between those with access to the Internet at home and those without was substantive, with an effect size of 0.87. The statistics presented in this report are estimates based on a NAEP pilot assessment conducted with a nationally representative sample of 10,400 grade 4 students. As a pilot assessment, the sample was not adjusted to account for nonresponse bias. As a result, the sample may not completely represent the grade 4 population. The following are appended:

(1) Exact text of questions in the 2012 NAEP Writing Contextual Questionnaires; (2) Tables; (3) Tables for Chapter 3; (3) Tables for Chapter 4; (4) Tables for Chapter 5; and (5) Figures. [The American Institutes for Research provided technical and editorial services.].

The Rosen Publishing Group, Inc
The fourth edition of this comprehensive resource helps future and practicing teachers recognize and assess literacy problems, while providing practical, effective intervention strategies to help every student succeed. The author thoroughly explores the major components of literacy, providing an overview of pertinent research, suggested methods and tools for diagnosis and assessment, intervention strategies and activities, and technology applications to increase students' skills. Discussions throughout focus on the needs of English learners, offering appropriate instructional strategies and tailored teaching ideas to help both teachers and their students. Several valuable appendices include assessment tools, instructions and visuals for creating and implementing the book's more than 150 instructional strategies and activities, and other resources.

Grade 4 Creston Books Language Development: Writing Process supports the development of writing skills, from pre-write to final edit. A variety of curriculum-correlated activities help learners explore a variety of methods to develop ideas, organize, compose, and edit their writing, and pre- and post-assessments aid teachers in individualizing instruction, diagnosing the areas where students are struggling, and measuring achievement, and support standards.
