The three concepts mentioned in the title of this volume imply the contact between two or more literary phenomena; they are based on similarities that are related to a form of 'travelling' and imitation or adaptation of entire texts, genres, forms or contents. Transfer comprises all sorts of 'travelling', with translation as a major instrument of transferring literature across linguistic and cultural barriers. Transfer aims at the process of communication, starting with the source product and its cultural context and then highlighting the mediation by certain agents and institutions to end up with inclusion in the target culture. Reception lays its focus on the receiving culture, especially on criticism, reading, and interpretation.

Translation, therefore, forms a major factor in reception with the general aim of reception studies being to reveal the wide spectrum of interpretations each text offers. Moreover, translations are the prime instrument in the distribution of literature across linguistic and cultural borders; thus, they pave the way for gaining prestige in the world of literature. The thirty-eight papers included in this volume and dedicated to research in this area were previously read at the ICLA conference 2016 in Vienna. They are ample proof that the field remains at the center of interest in Comparative Literature.

"In Murder in Parisian Streets Thomas Cragin provides an in-depth study of the production, sale, and content of the canards. He demonstrates their significance to nineteenth-century culture, even their role in determining the emerging tabloid's success. Cragin explores the incremental creation of textual meaning in the canards' authorship, production, distribution, and consumption. He exposes the power of oral traditions as well as modern marketing at work upon this popular news literature. The canards challenge our assumptions about the nineteenth century's revolution in print and reorient our understanding of cultural creation through textual construction."--Jacket.

J'ai beau être un monsieur plus tout jeune, je n'ai pas connu le cinéma muet mais n'oublions pas que le cinéma muet n'a jamais été complètement silencieux. Dans les deux ou trois jours qui ont suivi la première représentation publique des frères lumière, dès janvier 1896, on a demandé au pianiste Emile Malaval de venir jouer parce que l'appareil de projection, le cinématographe, faisait beaucoup de bruit... On l'appelait le moulin à café parce sa sonorité un peu similaire gênait les spectateurs... Il a été demandé au pianiste de "couvrir" tout ça, considérant ainsi qu'il fut le premier "musicien de film"... Quand de nos jours, on présente un film de la période du cinéma muet, on voit toujours un pianiste, tant il est vrai que dans les grandes salles de cinéma, il y avait même un orchestre parfois important. Songeons que La Roue de Abel Gance a été créée où Gaumont Palace en 1923 avec un orchestre symphonique qui interprétait la composition originale de Arthur Honegger... Vers 1926, le cinéma sonore a d'abord été uniquement sonore. Quand on expérimenta les premiers synchronismes avec des microsillons, c'était uniquement avec de la musique. Ensuite, il y aura des chansons, de la musique et des paroles, d'où la formule qu'on voyait sur les affiches : " 100% sonore et parlant ! ". J'ai toujours connu et aimé la musique de cinéma. Quand j'étais enfant il y avait beaucoup de chansons dans les films français, chantées par Danièle Darrieux ou Jean Gabin et sont apparus les grands compositeurs. Maurice Joubert a été la première grande "plume" du cinéma français. Hélas, il fut tué dans les premiers jours de la guerre en 1939. Il avait écrit la magnifique musique de L'Atalante de Jean Vigo, la si jolie valse de Carnet de bal de Julien Duvivier... Il est évident qu'à partir du moment où le cinéma est devenu sonore, les réalisateurs ont eu le plaisir de demander à des compositeurs de travailler pour eux et de leur écrire des musiques originales. A l'image de mon expérience avec Gérard Calvi, c'est là où se noue cette amitié constructive si bénéfique à un film, qui lie un réalisateur à un compositeur. Pierre Tchernia.

For the three forces competing for political authority in France during World War II, music became the site of a cultural battle that reflected the war itself. German occupying authorities promoted German music at the expense of French, while the Vichy administration pursued projects of national renewal through culture. Meanwhile, Resistance networks gradually formed to combat German propaganda while eyeing Vichy's efforts with suspicion. In The Musical Legacy of Wartime France, Leslie A. Sprout explores how each of these forces influenced the composition, performance, and reception of five well-known works: the secret Resistance songs of Francis Poulenc and those of Arthur Honegger; Olivier Messiaen's Quartet for the End of Time, composed in a German prisoner of war camp; Maurice Duruflé's Requiem, one of sixty-five pieces commissioned by Vichy between 1940 and 1944; and Igor Stravinsky's Danse concertantes, which was met at its 1945 Paris premiere with protests that prefigured the aesthetic debates of the early Cold War. Sprout examines not only how these pieces were created and disseminated during and just after the war, but also how and why we still associate these pieces with the stories we tell—in textbooks, program notes, liner notes, historical monographs, and biographies—about music, France, and World War II.
