Each Scientific Discipline Has A Philosophy And Methodology. The Philosophies Are Essential Because They Create A Set Of Subjectively Imposed Constraints Within Which The Individual Does Research. Closely Associated With Philosophy Is The Methodology. A Methodology Is The Logic Of An Explanation With Ensuring That Our Arguments Are Rigorous, That Our Inferences Are Reasonable And That Our Method Is Internally Coherent. The Present Book Has Been Designed To Explain The Methodological Problems Of Geography. The First Paper Gives An Account Of The Changing Techniques In Geography Followed By Methodological Foundations Of Change And The Scientific Methods In Geography . The

Modern Philosophy Like Positivism, Empiricism And Quantitative Revolution In The Discipline Has Been Cogently Given In The Subsequent Chapters. The Last Few Papers Give An Insight In The Space And Spatial Analysis The Status Of Geography And The Role Of Field Work . The Latest Techniques Like Application Of Remote Sensing In Geography Have Also Been Incorporated. The Great Merit Of The Book Is That It Brings Together In One Volume The Entire Gamut Of Geographical Methodology. It Underscores The Point That Geographical Methodology Is No Longer Descriptive In Character And With The Sophisticated Methodological Tools And Techniques It Is Strongly Emerging Into A Mature Modern Scientific Discipline. This Book Will Be Immense Help To Those Interested In The Methodology Of Geography And Will Also Encourage Them To Search Further And Learn More About The Methodological Problems Of The Discipline.

The term Human Geography has been defined as the 'synthetic study of the relationship between human societies and the environment'. since 1980s, Human Geography widened to become an omnibus term, describing all those parts of geography which are not solely concerned either with the physical environment or with the technical issues dealt with under geography sub-fields such as cartography. The broad sub-fields of human geography are: Cultural Geography, Economic Geography, Historical Geography, Political Geography, Regional Geography, Social Geography, Agricultural Geography, Industrial Geography, Urban Geography, Transport Geography, Medical Geography and Geography of Gender. The present book has been organized in three parts. The first part deals with the themes and fundamentals of Human Geography, and the spatial distribution and regional trends of world population. part two analyzes the patterns of unity and diversity, patterns of development and human settlements including the functional organization of rural and urban settlements. Part three presents a concise account of the aboriginals and indigenous peoples termed as the 'first people'. The indigenous peoples are numerous. living in diverse geo-ecological settings. They are strikingly and distinctly diverse in their culture, belief, religion and social and economic organizations. This part of the book systematically describes the salient aspects of the ways of life of some of typical indigenous peoples of the world.
